

The Jewish Giving Circle Movement

When a group of friends, family, or co-workers pool their charitable donations and decide together where to give...

...it's called a giving circle.

AMPLIFIER is a global network of giving circles motivated by Jewish values.

Why join the Amplifier community?

EFFICIENT FUNDRAISING

With Amplifier's common grant application, the first of its kind, your organization can apply once for grant opportunities from many circles.

ACTIVE GRANT MARKETPLACE

There's a lot of action—dozens of giving circles make grants regularly and repeatedly, to organizations focused on a wide range of issues.

ROOM TO GROW

Giving circles are issue-focused and committed to learning and impact—which means one-time donors are more likely to become lasting supporters.

Do I need to represent a 'Jewish organization' to be considered?

No, all nonprofit organizations are encouraged to submit common grant applications on Amplifier. Amplifier giving circles are inspired by Jewish values, which means different things to different circles—both in terms of the types of causes they focus on and the target audiences they hope to reach. We aim to have a directory of nonprofits that is as diverse as our giving base, so we can serve donors whose interests range across the spectrum of social causes.
